Partners eye Georgia spud

THE Range Resources and Red Emperor Resources partnership has carried out final preparations to spud its second exploration well in Georgia by mid-February.

The partnership had earlier suspended its first exploration well, the Mukhiani-1, for further testing of what it called "unexpected geological sequences".

The new Namakhvani probe has a targeted depth of 3500 metres at the Kursebi 6 prospect, which has now been identified as the most promising, "with a significantly thicker Jurassic section".
